NEW DRY CHIEF FOR OHIO TO BE CHOSEN

JUDGE PORTERFIELD MAY BE SUCCESSOR OF THOMAS STONE

General Shake-up of Federal Prohibition Forces thruout the Country May be Announced Soon—Commissioner Haynes Insists That Merit Alone Counts in Making Appointments.

E. L. Porterfield, of Delaware, former probate judge of Delaware county, and now special agent in the federal prohibition department, probably will succeed Thomas E. Stone as acting federal prohibition director for Ohio, according to information received Thursday from reliable sources in the capital at Washington.

It is said that Mr. Stone is needed elsewhere and that since he belongs to the mobile force his assignment in Ohio was only intended as a "stopgap" until a successor to J. E. Russell, suspended director, could be chosen.

There will be no appointment of a permanent federal director until the outcome of the trial of Russell is known.

Persons at Washington, qualified to speak, predict that Porterfield will ultimately succeed himself as permanent director of federal prohibition forces in Ohio.

For the past two years he has been acting as assistant to Prohibition Commissioner Roy A. Haynes and is said to have the complete confidence of the dry chief.

The proposed change became known in connection with information concerning a general shake-up and reorganization of the federal prohibition forces thruout the country, the details of which are to be announced shortly. In suggesting Porterfield for this job with jurisdiction over all general prohibition agents operating in Ohio, Haynes insists he has made good on his promise that merit alone would count.

Porterfield held the job once before, in 1922, when he entered the prohibition service after serving a year as assistant solicitor in the postoffice department he was, made divisional chief for the same area. Divisional headquarters when at Toledo.

After serving several months there he was transferred to Washington where he has since been as confidential adviser and assistant to Haynes.

If Porterfield takes hold at Columbus, it is likely a general transfer of all agents serving under that office will occur. This, it will be explained is in line with the policy of transferring all members of the mobile forces and "flying squadrons" after they had served for some time in one place. It is also said in the same quarters that the successor of Henry A. Dykeman, Cleveland, divisional chief, will not be an Ohio man.

The estate includes 23,000 shares of Inland Steel stock valued at $805,000. The Battelle home at 622 East Town street, was appraised at $26,620, house furnishings and three autos at $2575. Sixteen articles of jewelry were listed at $13,225.

The inventory was made by James A. White, Ralph H. Sweetser and Charles E. Firestone, appraisers.

Give Up Horseshoe Making
Manufacturing horseshoes is no longer profitable, the United States Steel corporation finds, automobiles having so thoroughly displaced the horse in America. Announcement has been made that the American Steel and Wire company, one of the larger subsidiaries of the Steel corporation, has sold the machinery, stock and good will of its horseshoe department to the Phoenix Horseshoe company of Chicago. The demand for horseshoes, it was said, had dwindled to such an extent that the company found it could devote the space required by its horseshoe plant to better advantage by manufacturing products more generally in demand.

WILL REPORT SELECTIONS FOR ACTION

Appointments of Governor Donahey will be fought out on Senate floor.

The fight in the Ohio senate over confirmation of Governor Donahey's appointments to the Public Utilities, Civil Service and Tax commissions will come on the qualifications of the men named, according to present plans of senate leaders.

Earlier plans had called for holding of the names by the Rules committee so the fight would come only indirectly thru a motion to have the committee relieved of their consideration and throw them back to the senate.

The four major appointments pending in Rules committee are James W. Huffman, executive secretary to the governor, and Earl D. Bloom, of Bowling Green, former lieutenant governor, of the Public Utilities commission; Rudy W. Archer, of Cleveland, for the Civil Service commission and William A. Hopkins, of Cincinnati, for the Tax commission.

Restore Ancient Windows

In the year 1326 seven windows, the handiwork of the old masters, were presented to Tewkesbury abbey, in Gloucestershire, England, by Eleanor de Clare, wife of Hugh le Despenser. They have long been regarded as among the most treasured possessions of the abbey. Time naturally has had its way with the leadwork, and the glass itself has been damaged and disarranged, but happily not beyond repair. Steps are being taken to have them restored as nearly as possible to their original beauty. The abbey contains in all some really magnificent painted glass and monuments of considerable interest in every corner. The abbey itself had its origin in the Twelfth century.

KEEPING WELL

PURIFYING THE OYSTER

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

THE "oyster quarantine" following typhoid epidemics in New York, Chicago and elsewhere, has thoroughly aroused the oyster packers and dealers. And well it may! Oysters are a delicious, wholesome food that everybody likes and wants. You can't get enough oysters to suit you, if you know they are pure. You can't eat enough to hurt you, if you know they are good.

But if oysters are grown in sewage polluted water, and if there is any chance of oysters causing typhoid, then no one wants them. We haven't anything against the oyster, only we don't like its associates and surroundings. Health officers sometimes express doubt as to whether the work done during the last twenty-five years to educate the public on health has really increased general knowledge on disease prevention. No better answer could be given than the recent "oyster scare." The Illinois state director of health and the New York city health officer prohibited the sale of raw oysters in Illinois and New York city. Their action was announced in the newspapers.

Instantly the bottom dropped out of the oyster business. Naturally, the oysters dealers are irritated.

Now let's get this oyster question straight. Oysters are good food and healthful food, provided they are clean oysters. But nobody wants to buy or eat oysters that were raised in a sewer. It is estimated that 100,000,000 gallons of sewage flows into New York harbor every twenty-four hours. Probably as much more goes into the Atlantic from other towns and cities nearby. The entire sea coast is polluted. That isn't the oysters' fault. But you don't want food that lives in diluted sewage.

So as the Fish and Oyster Reporter well says, "If pollution is contaminating our oysters, why not stop the pollution instead of banishing the oyster?" Pouring human refuse into bodies of water whether lake, pond, river or ocean is a nasty and lazy way of disposal. The oyster industry produces every year 146,000,000 pounds of good food valued at $14,000,000. Over 70,000 people get their living in the oyster business. If the oyster men will clean up their business and give us clean oysters, everybody will be happy. France has done it and so can we.

Saving Frosted Combs

Breeding males whose combs have been slightly frostbitten may be treated so that they will recover in a short time. Place the birds in a fairly cool room and treat them individually with a mixture made as follows: Heat five tablespoonfuls of grease until it becomes liquefied. Then stir in two tablespoonfuls of glycerin and a tablespoonful of turpentine. Apply once or twice a day. If the injury has been severe it will be best to cut off the entire comb, being careful to sear the cut part with a hot iron to prevent great loss of blood.

Cow for Producing Milk

Pure bred animals possess 100 per cent of the blood of their respective breed. Grade animals have a predominance of the blood of a given breed but less than 100 per cent, and they are usually by pure bred sires and out of native or grade cows. The better a cow is bred the greater insurance you have against disappointment when you buy or keep a cow for milk production. Purity of breeding, furthermore, tends to insure excellence of type.

FARM FACTS

The soil on a good farm gets better every year.

Work is drudgery when you haven't got the right equipment.

Business men are predicting a prosperous year for 1925. Here's hoping.

Farming with just the hands and the feet goes hand in hand with delinquent taxes.

The best farmers generally take time to put on the few extra touches that really finish a job.

An efficient and valuable man does what he can for his community—that's why he is valuable.

Another thing about grain farming—plowing binder tracks under every year won't keep land producing.

No agricultural college has as yet announced whether it is worse to give good feed to scrub cows or scrub feed to good cows.

"Every farmer should produce half of his living in the home garden," is the slogan used by horticultural workers in the home garden campaign.

Top-dressing winter wheat with manure will help the wheat, will provide an opportunity to apply phosphate where this was not applied with the wheat at seeding, and will do much to insure the following clover crop.

Greatest Grain Ports

Duluth, in Minnesota, and Superior, in Wisconsin, which lie 1,500 miles inland, are practically ocean ports for the shipment of wheat in unbroken bulk to Liverpool, 5,000 miles distant, by reason of the Welland and Erie canals. Both cities are in connection with New York by water for the unbroken shipment of barges containing the equivalent of 75 freight cars.

Situated at the very gateway to the rich wheat country of the Northwest, Duluth and Superior have seen the shipment of grain increase by leaps and bounds. The first shipment from Superior was one of 49,000 bushels in 1870. Since that shipment 16 elevators, having a storage capacity of more than 18,000,000 bushels, have been built on the water front of this one city. The Great Northern elevator system alone possesses a storage capacity of almost 8,000,000 bushels. A single plant of this system handles 6,000,000 bushels and can receive, clean and reship 400 cars in a working day of 10 hours. To completely fill all of Superior's elevators once the equivalent of 600 trainloads of wheat is required. When the first grain shipment was made from Superior a boat carrying 1,000 tons was a large vessel. Today boats plying to that port carry 14,000 tons.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

Peat Fertilizing Value Is Not Yet Understood

Every little while a question arises as to the fertilizing value of peat. This is a natural question, because the many peat deposits throughout northern sections of the country show a high content of nitrogen. Often it is claimed that this nitrogen in peat is comparable with nitrogen in commercial fertilizer.

Peat has often been used as a filler for low-grade fertilizers, and as a means of making a high analysis of nitrogen which is not really justified. The nitrogen content of peat has a very low availability, and any one who expects the value of this nitrogen to compare with the value of nitrogen in commercial fertilizers, is certain to be disappointed.

Peat lands may often be utilized to very good advantage by applying potash, which balances up the fertility sufficiently to produce a crop. Some very striking results have been achieved in northern Illinois by this treatment.

Tigress Ready to Fight Against Odds for Cubs

According to an authority on big game, a tigress is an excellent mother. He says:

I once saw a tigress with two small cubs, about the size of fox hounds, come out of some heavy bush cover, which was being beaten by three or four elephants. The two cubs trotted on ahead, and in order to cover their retreat, the tigress twice charged the line of elephants, roaring loudly.

The cubs would probably have died if I had shot the mother, so I let her go. I thought she deserved this for her bravery.

There were not many tigers about in this particular neighborhood, but strictly speaking it was probably most improper to spare her life, as game was scarce in that locality and this tigress would therefore have probably educated her cubs in the art of cattle killing. A tigress with growing cubs is far more destructive than a tiger or tigress alone, or as a pair.

The tiger cub at birth is very small—in fact, not much bigger than a large rat. Three or four cubs is the usual number, but as a rule only two of a litter grow up. I have once seen four almost full-grown cubs and the tigress all together. The cubs stay with the mother until they are nearly full grown. I have shot them in company with their mother when the male cubs measured eight feet four inches in length, and the females about seven feet six inches. The average length of a full-grown male tiger is about nine feet six inches and of the female, about one foot less. A tiger over ten feet is an exceptionally large one. Ten feet four inches was the length of the biggest I ever shot, and the largest tigress I ever saw was nine feet two inches.

Ordinarily a tiger will kill only sufficient animals for his own needs, and assuming that his kills are not removed by the natives or devoured by vultures, two kills weekly are quite enough for him. A big male tiger is quite a noble-looking animal.

Skunks and Their Habits

W. Kenneth Cuyler, of the zoology department of the University of Texas, having completely lost his sense of smell, has taken advantage of this unusual condition and hunted and studied skunks for many years. He finds they are easily tamed and make fine mousters. Besides mice, they eat all sorts of things, from roots, berries and insects to birds and eggs, and sometimes rival the possum in their ability to rob the chicken roost. The musk which efficiently defends the skunk from most people is manufactured by two egg-shaped glands with contractile walls which can force out jets in any direction, even directly over the head of the skunk. These jets break up into a fine spray and can reach an object as distant as 20 feet. Mr. Cuyler says skunks are usually loath to waste their musk and therefore do not discharge it promiscuously, but only when cornered and irritated. For removing skunk odor, Mr. Cuyler suggests washing in gasoline or ammonia water, or in water containing a few drops of carbolic acid and oil of wintergreen. A much more effective method, which he regularly uses, is to hold face and hands or clothing for a few minutes in the thick, heavy smoke produced by placing green juniper branches on a good fire.

One of War's Martyrs

Freed from living death, Trooper T. W. Rolfe, known the world over as "The Man in the Bath," has died at Randwick Military hospital, Sydney, Australia. Rolfe was literally flayed alive by German poison gas. His was a case unique in medical history, for he was condemned to pass the rest of his days at Randwick in a bath of tepid water, constantly circulating to keep off surface poisons. "Well, anyway, a bloke can't get much worse," was his smiling comment to the visitors he loved to see. Rolfe became a world figure of sympathy through the publicity his case received, and he had correspondents in Alaska, North China, North and South Africa, Scotland, and various parts of the United States.

Sues an Entire Village

Count Friedrich Szechenyi, a Hungarian aristocrat, is bringing legal action against the entire village of Peterhida in southwestern Hungary. Szechenyi leased a piece of land to the villagers for a rental of one-quarter of a carload of grain a year. The village neglected to pay and the count is bringing suit. He has had the legal forms run off on a duplicating machine and will serve each villager. The case will be heard in Nagyutad, the nearest county seat, and the entire population of Peterhida will have to appear.

Modern Setting

An Emporia school teacher was attempting to familiarize her pupils with the picture of Mona Lisa, by weaving about it a romantic story.

"Do you see the strange background of the picture, children?" she said. "Now where do you suppose Mona Lisa was sitting to have that strange view at her back?"

A youngster in the back row was puzzled only for a moment. "I'll bet she was drying her hair on the sleeping porch, out in the country," he volunteered.—Emporia Gazette.

AMUSEMENTS

Betty Compson, Theodore Roberts, Kathlyn Williams, Theodor von Eltz and Robert Edeson are featured in the cast of William de Mille production of "Locked Doors" for Paramount. It's an original screen story by Clara Beranger, due at the Met today.

The story is one of a beautiful young girl who marries a wealthy architect many years her senior. The marriage is a loveless affair for the girl, centered upon more for the fact of assuring her elderly and crippled father of a comfortable home than anything else.

Theodore Roberts has the role of Betty's father in the production. It is his first screen role in a year and it is said to rival even his character, "Grumpy" Edeson is Miss Compson's husband in the picture and Theodore von Eltz has the role of the young fellow Betty meets and falls in love with. Kathlyn Williams is well cast as the architect's sister who sees that her brother is happy and in trying to smooth things over complicates matters the more.

Others in the strong cast of the production include Elmo Billings, freckled and extremely clever in the part of the young mountain lad who tells Betty and von Eltz of the "big one that got away," while he was fishing and Jane Winton, "Follies" beauty.

"Locked Doors" is a picture that appeals to everyone in that it is extremely human—a story of what might be happening in the house right next door to you this very moment. It has drama, comedy, thrills and all the rest a picture you'll never forgive yourself for missing.

SPRING FOOT BALL

At Ohio State To Last Only Three Weeks.

Columbus, April 2.—Work of building the sub-structure of Ohio State's 1925 foot ball team was well under way today. Formal spring practice opened Monday with the opening of the spring quarter.

The spring campaign will last three weeks, according to the plans of Dr. J. W. Wilce. The present spring practice marks the beginning of his thirteenth year at Ohio State in charge of foot ball. He came here from the University of Wisconsin in the spring of 1913.

Upwards of 50 candidates are working in spring practice under the direction of Dr. Wilce and the assistant coaches. Of these the great majority are recruits from last fall's freshman squad and reserves from the 1924 varsity.

Diameter of Sun and Moon

The sun is immensely larger than either earth or moon. Its diameter is more than 100 times that of the earth and its volume more than a million times as great. Its mass is 332,800 times that of the earth. The moon has a diameter of 2,163 miles, about a quarter that of the earth. Its volume is about one forty-ninth that of the earth.

HARTMAN THEATER

At the Hartman next Monday, April 6, and thruout the week with matinee Wednesday and Saturday "The Potters" will keep "open house."

You will feel from the outset that you know the Potters—have known them all your life and are just looking on at a period of that life fraught with events and consequences the full significance of which they are overestimating, perhaps but which you perceive at once and enjoy the more because you realize that life will not deal very harshly with such eminently human affectionate folk. Here are life's little ironies set forth in sequence and so vividly delineated that you are never out of touch with their real sentimental values. "The Potters" are just plain, everyday folks. They may be found in every neighborhood. There are Pa and Ma Potter and son, Bill, and daughter, Mamie. There is Red, the ex-life saver, who elopes with Mamie and a few ice-men, motormen, conductors, garage owners, oil operators and stenographers thrown in for good measure. If there is any plot to piece it centers about Pa's effort to get rich by investing the family savings of $4,000 in an oil well. Pa is such a boob that the oil shark throws in an extra lease, which, of course, proves to be the one on which oil is ultimately found, thus relieving Pa of being in truth, the utter failure Mr. believes him to be.

"The Potters" was presented in New York all last season and was rated as one of the biggest comedies of the year. It is based on well known syndicated newspaper stories written by J. P. McEvoy. Richard Herndon presents it. It is so deftly done so adroitly presented that it is as tho "The Potters" were sitting in the spotlight permitting the whole world to listen in on their pleasures and sorrows.

The leading player, Donald Meek, will be seen in his original role of "Pa" Potter. Others notable in the cast are Eleanor Gordon, Mary Stills, Raymond Guilan, Douglas Hunter, Viola Struthers, Blanche Moulton, Dean Raymond and George Le Seir.

Did You Ever Notice That They All Ride In Automobiles?

The ownership of an automobile today is recognized as a sign of success. The successful people in business and in the crafts and professions ride in motor cars.

It is quite often true that they achieved a large measure of their success after they got the car; in fact the car was the one thing needful to assure success through its time-saving, health-bringing, confidence-inspiring attributes.

The man who says "I will buy a car if I make some money this season" is not likely to succeed so fast as the man who says "I will buy a car now and make more money this year."

KEEPING WELL

IS CONSUMPTION HEREDITARY?
DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

FOR many years it was generally believed that consumption was inherited. This view was, in many cases, held by doctors as well as laymen. There were so many instances in which the children of tuberculous parents developed consumption that it seemed reasonable to assume that the disease was handed down from parent to child.

So it was, but it was by close and constant association, by living in infected houses, by eating and sleeping and living with infected persons that the disease was transmitted and not by inheritance. More careful study proved that tuberculosis could not be inherited and that an adopted child or an inmate of the same household, in no way related to a consumptive, was just as apt to develop the disease as a child of the patient.

Then the believers in heredity fell back on their second position. They said that the disease itself was not inherited but that the child of consumptive parents inherited a "tendency" to the disease, that they had weaker lungs and consequently were more apt to develop the disease in later life.

But facts are stubborn things and are better than theories. Doctor Drolet has just reported the results of a careful study of 7,500 tubercular patients at Bellevue hospital in New York. In 1,695 children, he finds more tuberculosis among children of healthy parents than among those of tubercular parents. Among 2,500 patients admitted for other diseases but without tuberculosis, one-third had tubercular parents but had not tuberculosis themselves, while of 2,800 patients who had tuberculosis, only one-seventh had tubercular parents. In other words, the children of tubercular parents had less than half as much tuberculosis as the children of healthy parents.

It was also found that the children of tubercular parents who did have tuberculosis had twice as good a chance of getting well as the children of healthy parents.

Doctor Drolet concludes that the children of tubercular parents do not inherit the disease. They do not even inherit a tendency to it. Instead, they inherit a greater amount of resistance to it and a greater immunity to it than do the children of healthy parents.

Siphon Water to Capital

An automobile could be driven through the world's largest siphon, which is nearing completion on the outskirts of Washington, says Popular Science Monthly. It is to be used for the Great Fall conduit which will supply water to the national capital, and is expected to be ready for operation in May. This single siphon is sufficient in a stretch of 29 miles of piping, to give the water momentum enough to reach its destination.

"Our politicians love us dearly before the election, but after the election we—well, we get a shock like Mr. Munyon's."

"Mr. Munyon's wife came to him a little time before Christmas and said: 'George, dear, I'm sorry, but you'll have to give me a $200 check to buy our presents with. I've cut the list down to the bone, but prices are so high, and the list is still so long—'

"It's a tall order, $200," said Mr. Munyon, gloomily. 'Look here, suppose you don't give me any presents at all this Christmas?'

"Oh, George, I could never agree to that."

"Yes, yes, you must. Times are mighty hard."

"Well, if you insist, George, I consent, just for this once."

"Good!" And Mr. Munyon sighed with relief. 'Now go through your list again and tell me how big a check you need.'

"Mrs. Munyon went through the list a second time very carefully, while Mr. Munyon waited with a hopeful smile."

"There!" she said at last. 'There, George! You need only to give me a check for $199.50 now.'"

Radio for Insomnia

Sir Bruce Bruce-Porter, chief surgeon of the Third London General hospital, is already known as an enthusiast on the use of radio for the treatment of patients' mental troubles. He is quoted recently as saying that not only were patients in the hospital aided appreciably in getting to a state of normal health by the music brought in by radio sets, but also, together with Sir Henry Hadow, that many cases of insomnia and of highly nervous condition had been calmed and eased by the use of radio.

He maintains that radio in the hospitals would be one of the most practical advances that the medical science today could take, according to press reports.

Soup or Coffee?

Officials of a New York broadcast studio sent this story to editors: During the broadcast of a hotel orchestra, a waiter dropped a loaded tray. The next day the station received a special delivery letter containing the following earnest query:

"Was it soup or coffee that splashed when the tray was dropped? We stand two to one in my family that it was a distinctive coffee splash, with only my wife holding out for soup."—Collier's Weekly.

DEER DAMAGE

MUST STOP

Pennsylvania Farmers Seeking Legislation Through Grange Aid.

The Grange in Pennsylvania is enlisting the farmers in a state-wide endeavor to check the depredations by deer, and the movement is rapidly gaining headway. Damage to farm crops and fruit is every season becoming greater and farmers are demanding protection from the legislature against further depredations. Under certain restrictions Pennsylvania farmers may shoot deer found doing damage to their property but the killing must be immediately reported, the carcass promptly dressed and the meat turned over to the state. Such a revision of the present law is demanded as will cut much of the red tape and permit the farmer who has suffered deer damage to retain the dressed meat.

This is a lively topic among the Pennsylvania Granges and a strong sentiment for a changed law is the result.

Photography reveals many things about lighting. One is that a great many flashes are multiple, consisting of several discharges in rapid succession along the same path. says Nature Magazine. These flashes are studied by means of a camera mounted on a vertical axis and turned from side to side by clockwork. The pictures are taken at night, the shutter being left open until a flash occurs.
